

Shiite difference and politics<sup>1</sup>

Abstract

Shias, as the minority of Islamic worlds, have put always under pressure. So, they have deprived from politics to a large extent. However, they have always perused the politics and see the constructing a government as a necessary to implement the justice. Meanwhile, their resume to attain this aim are different. The article tries to analyse the distance to politics by over-viewing the main branches. The flinging illustrates that the political orientation of Zaidie are the heist from a historical and intellectual point of view. Nevertheless, various vibrations have been showed in the history by all branches which are related to the role of leaders, government's policy and their suppression. In addition, their political orientations of all branches are now radically increased as the result of the impact of Islamic revolution of Iran, escaping from isolation, ongoing and escalating pressure on them, and their attempt to construct a distinctive government.
